Un-PAR-alleled Generosity: Putting for a Cause

By: Charlotte Keen

There's nothing unusual about a bunch of golfers showing up early on Sunday morning at Rock Harbor Golf Course in Winchester, VA—except this bunch of golfers showed up for a cause – to give back to their community and to families across the nation who face the devastating disorder of Autism. Sunday, August 23, 2020 marked one of several fundraisers that Mike Moore, owner of The Optical Center, has organized and sponsored, in support of Fair Ways for Youth, Inc. (FWFY), a 501(3)c charity that has been raising funds for autism research for more than 15 years.

Sterling Keen, Director of FWFY, said of the event, “this group represents the very essence of our mission—show up to give back.” With just word-of-mouth publicity (a whole lot of mouth), about 50 two-player teams showed up early Sunday, played 18-holes, competed for prizes, had lots of fun, and in the end, along with event sponsors, donated nearly $3,200.00 to FWFY. “Now that's giving back and our community, including local organizations like Area 13 Special Olympics, the Children's Discovery Museum, TACA and others will appreciate your unparalleled generosity,” Keen remarked.

As with many charities this year, the annual FWFY fundraiser was postponed in May due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Sterling reminds everyone that the FWFY 2-day Golf Event has been rescheduled and takes place on October 10-11, 2020 at Rock Harbor. More information is available at the website www.fairwaysforyouth.org, or by calling Sterling Keen at 703-819-4861.
